Roberta Bernabei, Father and Son

This item was submitted to Loughborough University’s Institutional Repository by the/an author.

Additional Information:

- This work appears here with the permission of the publisher. This piece is part of Mnemonic and emotionally charged jewellery: participatory projects with community in Leicestershire 2016. The credits for the cover page are as follows: Maker: Dauvit Alexander Title of Work: Blood will have Blood: The Macbeth Brooch Materials: Assorted materials Size: Approx. 70mm x 85mm x 22mm Image Credit: Dauvit Alexander. Image courtesy of Andrew Neilson/Neilson Photography.

Metadata Record: https://dspace.lboro.ac.uk/2134/33971

Version: Published

Publisher: Schiffer Publishing © Mark Fenn

Rights: This work is made available according to the conditions of the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International (CC BY-NC-ND 4.0) licence. Full details of this licence are available at: https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc-nd/4.0/

Please cite the published version.
To Jane,
my soul partner, for always being there.
I love you with all my heart and soul.

To Jerri and Sam,
you both have made me a proud father,
and Libby-Jane, you’re the jewel in my eye.

To Grey and Murphy,
my studio companions.
CONTENTS

Foreword . . . 4
by Jack Cunningham, PhD

Preface . . . 4

Acknowledgments . . . 5

Introduction . . . 6

Identifying with the Narrative
by Jo Pond, MA . . . 8

Narratives of Material
by Dauvit Alexander aka The Justified Sinner . . . 9

Narrative Works . . . 11

Contributing Makers . . . 303
Roberta Bernabei is a jewelry maker and historian whose work has been exhibited at various national and international venues, including Victoria & Albert Museum, National Museum of Modern Art, Tokyo and the Museums of Decorative Arts in Berlin and Turin. She has been an academic at Loughborough University in the School of the arts since 2004. Her theoretical research into the history of “contemporary” jewelry has enabled the recent publication of her first book: Contemporary Jewellers: Interviews with European Artists.

My latest work has dealt with an interactive exhibition to imbue memory with jewelry. Participants are asked to talk about their memories and therefore the narrative and visual images provided by them become the main source of inspiration. The final brooches attempt to imbue their personal memories and my experience of working on a participatory project. The short narrative next to the piece of jewelry complements the work as it enables the viewer to be involved in the act of sharing the project.

Narrative: My work is based on people’s memories. In Cedar House project every participant was invited to share her or his memory through narration and visual aids such as images or objects. The final brooch attempts to imbue personal memories and the experience of working on a participatory project. The narrative complements the work as it enables the viewer to be involved in the act of sharing the project.

This brooch represents a memory of father and son of a memorable day dedicated to the Remembrance Day in the UK. The sky was peppered with bright red poppies. This fragile but strong flower has been a source of inspiration to depict the relationship between “father and son” described by the person who took part at the participatory project.