Part 38: The Uncanny Aids
A Charcoal-Burner

This item was submitted to Loughborough University’s Institutional Repository by the/an author.

Additional Information:

• This short paper was published in the magazine Stimulus >Respond. The definitive version is available at: http://www.stimulusrespond.com/

Metadata Record: https://dspace.lboro.ac.uk/2134/9715

Version: Accepted for publication

Publisher: Stimulus > Respond (© Phil Sawdon and Rob Ward)

Please cite the published version.

"Economy" is here used in its etymological sense as "law" (nomos) of the "house" (oikos). It counter-balances the "Unheimliche" (uncanny/unhomely).

Carbon are known, namely diamond and carbon, previously described as amorphous lampblack and animal charcoal are seen as you really are something as a pencil, and was drawing on charcoal with a sheepskin eraser whilst delousing the fire with bolts. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly startled. I recognised it as the donkey-ear, [you]. Sandwiching, however, but not to every what was occurring. The Unheimliche was the en face of ink, I came to what it was: the beginning, I was pleasantly started.
“(03 per cent), and in form as diamond and no such thing exists

Carbon

Carbon 14

Donkey is Esel

Easel and Donkey. A

A serpentine underlining

A serene underlining

We might have been a conclusive

Just

there could have been a conclusive flourish –

A serpentine underlining

but no such thing exists

The burning gates

Easel and Donkey.

A donkey is an artist’s sitting easel. The German word for donkey is Esel.

Carbon

14

Carbon

Goed